

CCEN Practical Cytometry Course

Breakfast & Luncheon Workshops

The CCEN offers its 3-day “Practical Courses in Clinical Cytometry” one to two times per calendar year in various locations around the world. These unique course offerings focus on practical, hands-on, clinical flow cytometry education in a small group format using a combination of wet (simulator-based) and dry labs (software analysis). Content focuses on both basic fundamentals, as well as, specific clinical applications and emphasizes instructor/student interactions via a low student to instructor ratio.

CCEN is now offering organizations the opportunity to host either a breakfast or luncheon workshop during the CCEN course.

Benefits of hosting:

- Prime access to attendees at key time slots
- Workshop may be any desired format, including either a product theater, hands-on workshop or education presentation.
- Logistics and meals arranged by the sponsor (with assistance from CCEN)
- CCEN will assist in promotion of the event

What's included:

- 60 minute timeslot (either breakfast or lunch)
- Meeting room
- Standard A/V equipment including computer, LCD projector, podium microphone, and projection screen
- Acknowledgment/advertising of workshop on website
- Digital signage outside meeting room
- Inclusion in course information email blasts
- Optional: sponsor may have access to computer workstations in the event room.

Important notes:

- Sponsor is responsible for all catering costs (may be put on CCEN master bill)
- All attendees must be CCEN course registrants

Cost:

- Breakfast workshop: 3,000 USD + catering costs
- Luncheon workshop: 5,000 USD + catering costs
